The Division of Information Technology (DIT) makes the learning, research, service, and administration of the University of Maryland better by enabling the effective use of technology in classrooms, laboratories, offices, and on the go. We are a unit of knowledgeable and diverse staff with skills in many disciplines that strives to build and maintain advanced, secure, and efficient information technology systems.

DIT proudly embraces our wide range of individual perspectives and experiences and highly values an open work environment that fosters the free exchange of ideas, mutual respect, and consideration for our differences.
