

JAPANESE MAJOR

School of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures

<http://slc.umd.edu/fields/japanese/major/>

Major Advisor: Ms. Makiko Inoue

The Japanese major provides the training and cultural background needed for entering East Asia-related careers in such fields as the arts, business, government, international relations, higher education, and the media. Students may also consider a double major in Japanese and another discipline, such as art history, business, economics, computer science, international relations, or linguistics. Another option available to students is a 24-credit undergraduate certificate in East Asian Studies.

After completing the prerequisite of one year of language (12 credits - JAPN101 Elementary Japanese I, six hours per week, fall or summer I; and JAPN102 Elementary Japanese II, six hours per week, spring or summer II), students must complete 42 credits for the major course requirements (24 language, 6 civilization/history, 12 elective).

Placement in Courses

For information about the World Language Placement, go to: <http://arhu.umd.edu/academics/world-language-placement/>.

Program Learning Outcomes

1. Upon completion of the core language sequence of JAPN 101-302, students will be able to ask and answer questions, handle topics related to their daily life and autobiographical topics by means of narration and description, engage in conversation in a participatory manner, and disagree by providing supporting reasons about a range of everyday topics, using passable grammar, vocabulary, and speech style(s) appropriate to specific social contexts.
2. Students will be able to read and understand kanji (Chinese characters) and kanji compound vocabulary introduced during the course; grasp the main points in a reading passage, analyze syntactic (grammatical) structures, recognize the function of polite (honorific/humble) language styles, and identify deleted subjects.
3. Upon completion of one or more courses in literary/cultural studies, students will demonstrate strong skills in interpreting a variety of literary, cultural, and historical texts in translation, and indicate a nuanced and deep understanding of the diversity of Japanese literature(s) and culture(s).

REQUIREMENTS

Students must take language-acquisition courses sequentially, and receive a grade of C- or better to advance to the next level. Once credit has been received in a higher level language acquisition or grammar course, a lower level course may not be taken for credit.

OPPORTUNITIES

Internships

Students in the Japanese program have successfully applied for a number of internship opportunities through the Japanese Information and Cultural Center (JICC), The Japan-America Society of Washington, D.C. (JASWDC), and other local organizations. For more information, please see the program advisor.

Study Abroad

The Japanese program offers a number of exchange program opportunities on a semester or yearlong basis with Japanese universities including Keio and Waseda in Tokyo, as well as study abroad opportunities through programs such as the University Studies Abroad Consortium (USAC) in Osaka, Japan. For more information on study abroad programs, see the program advisor and/or the Education Abroad website <http://globalmaryland.umd.edu/offices/education-abroad/>.

Scholarships and Financial Assistance

Students are encouraged to pursue scholarship funding through the Bridging (<https://www.aatj.org/studyabroad/japan-bridging-scholarships/>), Gilman (<https://www.iie.org/Programs/Gilman-Scholarship-Program/>), Watanabe (<https://www.usjapancouncil.org/watanabe-scholarship/>), Freeman (<https://www.iie.org/Programs/Freeman-ASIA/>), Boren (<https://borenawards.org/eligible-programs/#countries>) and Critical Language Scholarship (<https://clscholarship.org/languages/japanese/>) programs. We also urge you to seek advice when applying to such programs from UMD's National Scholarships Office (<http://scholarships.umd.edu>); the staff there offer helpful workshops which can help you to prepare a successful application.
